Cultural Festivals

“Spring Scream” outdoor music festival

The central ideas of the Spring Scream Music Festival are “pressure-free,” “laidback,” and “getting close to nature.” Since 1995, Spring Scream has been a great place where musicians show off their original creations. Hundreds of local and overseas underground music bands perform non-stop during festival time, and music lovers swing along as they listen to the tunes. Nighttime in Kenting can’t be more dazzling than during the Spring Scream!

Bluefin Tuna Cultural Festival

Donggang is known as the “home of bluefin tuna” because most of such fish has been caught here. Nicknamed as “the black urns” by locals, bluefin tuna is considered the largest tuna species in the world with the highest economic values. They are widely found in the northern Pacific Ocean, and would swim back to the Bashi Channel to spawn from April to June every year. Since 2001, the Pingtung County Government has held the Bluefin Tuna Cultural Festival annually, and has achieved a great success in the rich fish market. Bluefin tuna sashimi is highly appreciated for its rich texture and high nutrition value. Every year, during the Bluefin tuna season, gourmards from around the country are allured to taste the freshest tuna delicacies in Pingtung.

Qianggu Festival (Pole Climbing)

The Qianggu Festival in Hengchun has a long tradition. When “Pudu” (the ritual of universal salvation to the wandering ghosts on the seventh days of the lunar seventh month) ends, sacrificial offerings, or “Guping,” will be collected for an evening competition. (The word “Gu” means the offerings to wandering ghosts.) The nighttime activity can be divided into “Qianggu” and “Pole Climbing.” With Qianggu, papers written with the contents of offerings are scattered on the ground for locals to pick up and exchange for the offerings. With Pole Climbing, each participating team competes in climbing the stacks covered with butter. The victory goes to the first person to capture the flag on top of the stack. Different award will be given to each team according to their places in the competition.

Sailboat Activity at the Dapeng Bay

Dapeng Bay is an excellent place for water sport. It is also the best sailboat activity zone in Taiwan thanks to the distinctive lagoons and the bridge set to facilitate the sailing of such boats. International regatta activities are held in every May, as attended by large-sized sailboats from all over Southeast Asia. During activity days, you can not only watch all kinds of sailing competitions, enjoy a comprehensive display of the sailboats, but also try taking one of the boats yourself.

Wangye Worshipping Ceremony

The worshipping of Wen Wangye, an imperial god of Taiwan, has a century-long tradition. It has been ratified as a national intangible cultural heritage by Ministry of Culture. The festival is held every three years (only held in the Year of Ox, Dragon, Goat, and Dog) and lasts seven days. It is meant to invite Daitianxunshou (Inspector on behalf of the Heaven) and a handful of gods to deal the diseases and bring health and peace back to their followers. Finally, a “King Dog” is burned in midnight. But since many strict religious rules must be observed when the boat is being burned, visitors are advised to enjoy the delicately-made palanquins and artistic temple troupes in the day, rather than watching the boat burned at night.
